Please read:

We applied your advance payment against your opening balance. You may continue to make monthly payments, but your next mandatory payment is only due on the “next due date”. Your “next payment due” amount and the “next due date” may change if you make more payments before the next due date or if the interest rate changes for your loan. The “advance payment amount” shows the excess amount that you have paid above your normal monthly payment and will reduce over time, as we apply your monthly instalment against this amount. Interest will continue to be charged and added to your loan account. If you have set up a recurring auto debit and have not cancelled your mandate, we will apply these payments against your loan account.
